

Ans: Define isotopic peaks.

The peak representing ions that are one mass unit greater than the normal mass peak are isotopic peaks. The intensity of the isotopic peak relative to the intensity of the normal mass peak can often be used in the determination of ion's elemental composition.