

Ans-6 The inside of the solar collector is usually evacuated, the energy contained within the solar collect is basically trapped & thus heats the coolant contained within the tubes. The tubes are usually made from copper, & the backplate is painted black to help absorb solar radiation.