

Q.3

Why do executive institutes manager and acquisition of other firms? Explain.

Executive Institutes manager

The terms "Manager" and "Executive" are sometimes used interchangeably. Although the two functions have similarities and frequently overlap in the business world, distinct differences exist in the roles that managers and executives play within a company. These differences often have specific legal implications for workplace issues, specifically where work schedules and overtime pay are involved.

Acquisition of Other firms

An acquisition is when one company purchases

Page no 10

most or all of another company's shares to gain control of that company. purchasing more than 50% of a target firm is stock and other assets allows the acquirer to make decisions about the newly acquired assets without the approval of the company's shareholders.

- 1) Make a plan. look at the reasons to buy a company.
- 2) Build an Acquisition Team. Build a team that fills the following roles.
- 3) Do your research and due diligence. This process has two phases.
 - 1) Prepare documents. Non-disclosure Agreement.
 - 2) Make your first offer.
 - 3) Negotiate the terms.
 - 4) Write up C and then sign a Contract.