

5

Q.3

Explain the transaction processing system?

The transaction processing system

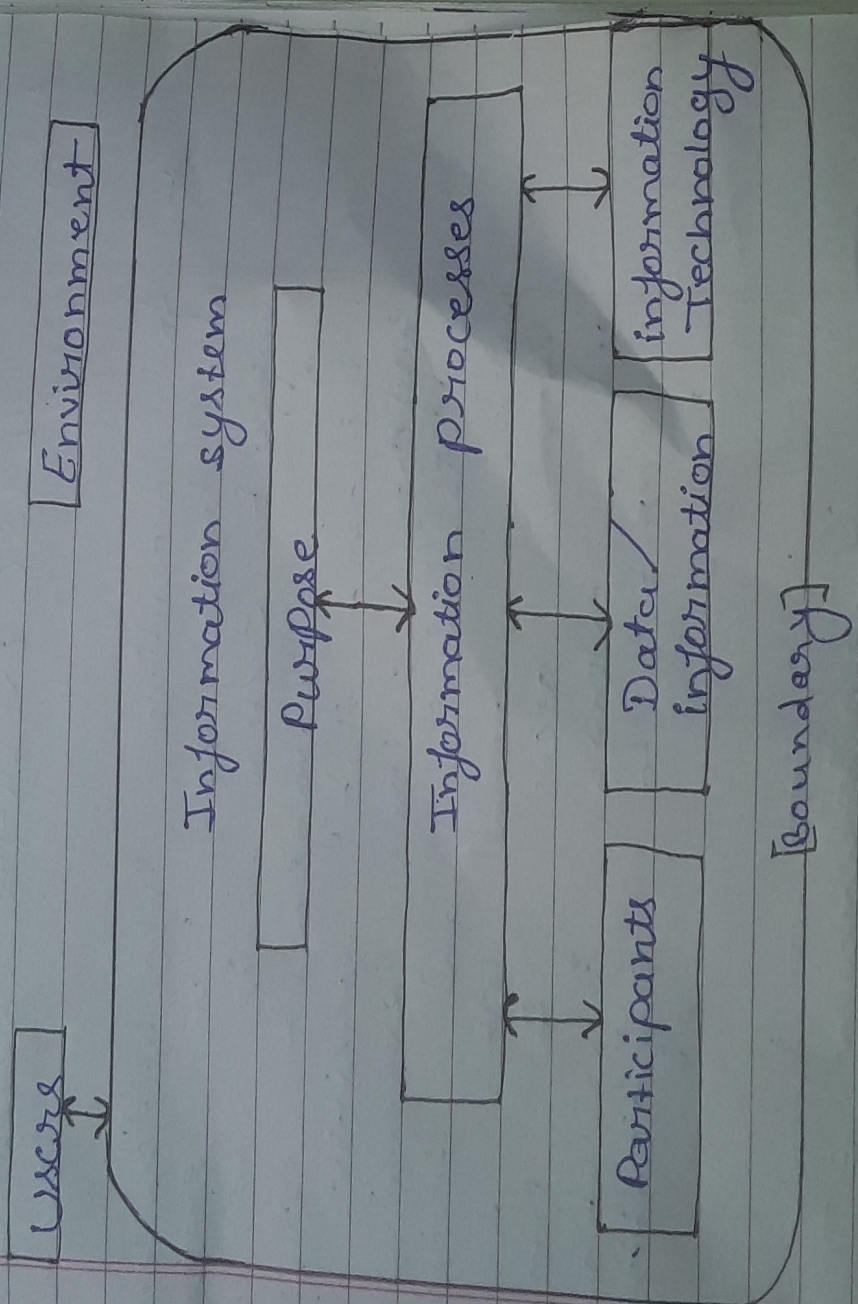

A transaction process system is an information processing system for transactions involving the collection, modification and retrieval of all data. Characteristics of a TPS include performance, reliability and consistency. TPS is also known as transaction processing or real-time processing.

★ The transaction processing system is important. The most are following in the below in structure.

6

Processing

The all processing is the very well the following transaction processing system.