

Q-7

Ans-7 "The process of studying a procedure or business in order to identify its goals and purposes and create systems and procedures that will achieve them in an efficient way". The another view sees system analysis as an problem-solving technique that break down a system into its component pieces for the purpose of the studying how well those components part work and interact to accomplish their purpose

The development of a computer based information system includes a system analysis phase. This helps produce the data model, a precursor to

Good Write

Create or enhancing a database.

* The development of a feasibility study: determining whether a project is economically, socially, technological and organisationally feasible.

* Decision: making a final Decision.

* Logical design: looking at the logical relationship among the object.

* Requirement analysis: determining the conditions that need to be met.