

Section-2

Date: / /

Ans 2

Public key cryptography:-

- A type of lock used in asymmetric encryption that is used with an encryption algorithm to convert the message to an unreadable form
- used to encrypt the message
- widely distributed

Private key

- A type of lock used in asymmetric encryption that is used with a decryption algorithm to convert the received message back to the original message
- used to decrypt the message
- kept secret

Date: / /

~~NO~~ Configuration management

network configuration management is a broad term for the organisation and management of a computer network, all sorts of network including local area network, virtual network and all need elements of maintenance, modification, repair and general monitoring. network configuration management involves collecting different information about hardware, software, program and other elements of the network. In order to support administrators and troubleshooting.