

Ans. Directory Service Authentication. You can use an external authentication directory service (also called an enterprise directory or authentication logon domain) to provide a single sign-on for groups of users instead of maintaining individual local user accounts.

A virus is a malicious computer program that self replicates by copying itself to another program. The purpose of creating a computer virus is to infect vulnerable systems, gain admin control and steal user sensitive data.