

① various components of Information system are -

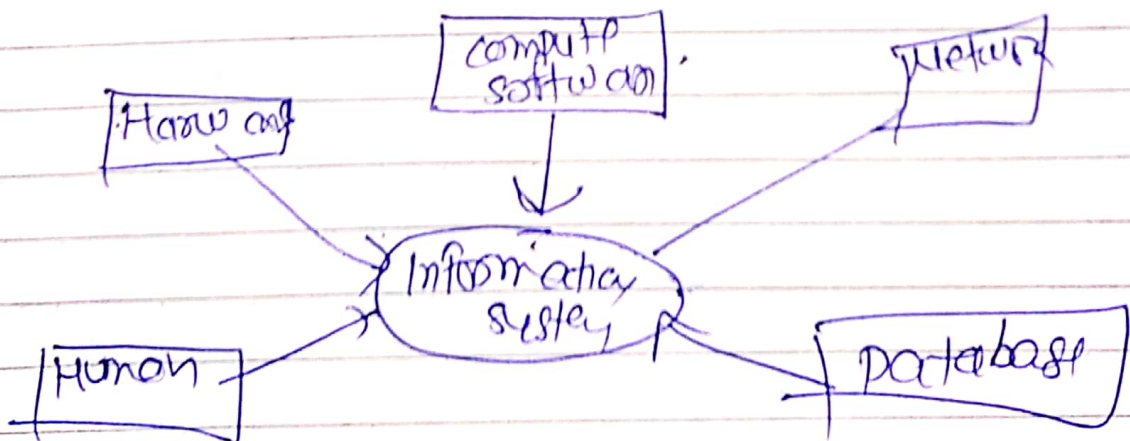

① computer hardware: Physical equipment used for input output and processing it depends upon type of organization.

② computer software: The programs / applications program used to control and co-ordinate the hardware. Command

③ database: Data are raw facts and figure that are organized and later processed to generate information.

④ network: Network resources refer to the telecommunication network like internet, extranets and the intranet.

⑤ Human resources

Application Security or Application Security is the use of software hardware and procedural methods to protect application from external threats

Application Security includes three types of security

① database .

② email .

③ internet