

Q.1. The plastic turning process involves cutting away unwanted or excess material, prior to producing the final plastic part. This process requires a turning machine or lathe and a cutting tool (typically single point that is also secured within the machine).