

Q.1. The most basic copy machines are used solely to make copies. You can use them to copy photographs or documents of various sizes and the tops are hinged to allow books, binders and other bulky materials to be copied. Copies can be made in black and white or full colour.