

A1

Disk scheduling → Input/output scheduling is the method that computer operating system use to decide in which order the block I/O operations will be submitted to storage volumes. I/O scheduling is some time called disk scheduling.