

A1

Procedural design - It is often understood as software design processes that uses mainly control constructs such as sequence, condition, repetition, which are applied to the predefined data. Sequences serve to achieve the processing

Page: _____
Date: _____

Steps in order that is essential in the specification of any algorithm.