Q) "As the seed, thus the Plant", Explain
It means in plant order there is a seed on formance. The plant grown from seed will have the same quality that were present in the seed. A neem seed will always sprout a neem plant all of us know this. Its fruits, its leaves, all this information, this basic information of every neem plant is stored in the seed. Thus, we say as the seed, thus the plant. Hence, we say that a plant conforming to the seed, has seed conformance, this seed conformance' method is the mechanism by mean of which the continuity of a plant species is maintained in natural existence.
