

Section - 1

1 Plastering  $\Rightarrow$  It is the process of covering rough surface of wall columns ceiling and other building components with thin coat of plastic mortar to form a smooth durable surface.

Pointing  $\Rightarrow$  It is used to denote the finishing of mortar joints of either stone masonry or brick masonry.

Acoustics  $\Rightarrow$  It is the science of sound which deals with origin propagation and auditory sensation of sound & also with design and construction of building to set optimum conditions for production and listening speech, music, etc.

HVAC  $\Rightarrow$  The process of creating, controlling and maintaining indoor atmospheric condition best suited to the requirement of man or to the need of industry is known as air conditioning.