

Section - 2

Question 1.

Ans: 1
Determinants of personality :- Personality is a result of the combination of four factors, i.e. physical environment, heredity, culture, and particular experience.

Here we discuss each factor determining personality separately.

How do you define personality.

Personality :- Personality refers to individual difference in characteristic patterns of thinking, feeling and behaving.

The study of personality focuses on two broad areas one is understanding individual difference in particular personality characteristics such as sociability or irritability.

What is personality and factors affecting personality :- It is the sum of physical and mental abilities and capabilities.

→ what are examples of personality?

determining personality Types.

→ Openness: appreciation for a variety of experiences.

→ Conscientiousness: planning ahead rather than being spontaneous.

* Extraversion: being sociable energetic and talkative.

* Agreeableness: being kind sympathetic and happy to help.

What are the major determinator of personality?

Determinants of personality :- personality is a result of the combination of four factors i.e. physical environment, heredity, culture and particular experiences.

Here we discuss factor personality