3:- GLOBALISATION:-

It is a process of interaction and integration among people, companies and governments worldwide. As a complex and multifaceted phenomenon, it is considered as a form of capitalist expansion which entails the integration of local and national economies into a global, unregulated market economy. It has grown due to advances in transportation and communication technology. The increased global interactions comes the growth of international trade, ideas and culture. Globalisation is primarily an economic process of interaction and integration that's associated with social and cultural aspects. Conflicts are also a large part of the history of globalisation as a whole.

IMPACT ON ENVIRONMENT:-

Globalisation has also contributed more in degradation as well. It has led to increase in the consumption of products, affected the ecological cycle, increased consumption leads to an increase in the production of goods, which also creates or puts more stress on the environment as a whole.

It has been so rapid and so unprecedented that its effects and impacts are being felt in the smallest and most remote human communities in developed, under-developed & developing countries.

As a matter of fact globalisation has a huge impact over all the environmental activities as a whole.
